AMUSEMENTS.

That was a rare treat for the thea tre-going people of this community last night, when Mr. Creston Clarke, and Miss Adelaide Prince appeared at the Opera House in a magnificent production of "Hamlet." As the melancholy Dane, Mr. Clarke gives promise of rivaling his famous uncle, Edwin Booth, if that be possible, and is already regarded as the leading exponent of that character on the American stage. It will be remembered by theatre-goers that when Mr. Clarke was last here he put on his plays in such a style that he left a lasting impression upon the people—in fact, an impression that will not be forgotten in many years. Mr. Clarke is a favorite everywhere, and his presentations have met with the greatest success on every tour, and no matter how many times one may see him they are always auxious and glad to see him again. His productions are the most finished, the most highly polished that have ever been put upon the American stage. put on his plays in such a style that he

"Miss Hobbs."

Possibly the truest standard by which to judge a play is to note the impression it makes upon an audience While an author naturally desires the approval of the critical few, it is the verdict of the many which makes or mars. Measured by the rule of the majority, Jerome K. Jerome's "Miss Hobbs," which will have its first presentation in this city at the Opera House, next Friday night, October 12, is a successful play and is destined to linger in pleasurable memory. pression it makes upon an audience

"What Happened to Jones."

At this late day it is almost impossi ble to say anything new about George H. Broadhurst's popular farce, "What Hap, ened to Jones." Its tur is perennial. Its lines are fetching and its situations provoke as much laughter as when first presented. "Jones" will make his annual visit to the Opera House, mattines and night, on October 13, when it will be presented at the Grand Opera House, with the following cast, which includes most of the old-time favorites: John Allison, Joseph McKeever, H. G. Hockey, H. W. Montgomery, Will H. Vedder, Charles Green, L. P. Reinhart, Marle Haynes, Florence Marion, Olive Murray, Dorothy Armstrong, Bertha Livingstone and Maud Allison. H. Broadhurst's popular farce,

"Faust."

One of the most famous and intricate One of the most famous and intricate scenes known to the stage is the celebrated Brocken scene in Lewis Morrison's well known big production of "Faust." It is a reproduction of the orgies supposed to have occurred in the Hartz mountains on Walpurgis night. St. Walpurgis went to Germany with Boniface, there chronicling his advent as May I, hence the appellation of Walpurgis plath. Suppossition in of Walpurgis night. Superstition in the history of that period assigned that night as the time of the annual meet-ing of the witches, when spells were cast and a general feasing of fiendish revertes took place. This explanation will easily show the possibilities in this scene for wonderful scenic, mechanic-al, electrical and pyrotechnical effects.

"Town Topics."

There was a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night to welcome Willie Dunlay, a Wheeling boy, in the merry farce comedy, "Town Topics." He has a dual role, appearing as a tramp and a detective, and his work as a comedian is very clever, but it is as a vocalist that he excels. Dunlay's tenor voice attracted attention on account of its sweetness and purity, and secured him his first engagement, but it now has, in addition to those qualities, that polish which comes from careful training and experience behind the footlights. He was repeatedly encored last night, his reception amounting to an ovation. The company presenting "Town Topics" is large and thoroughly capable, and the specialties are given in a very pleasing manner. The play will be repated tonight and Wednesday, matinee and night. come Wille Dunlay, a Wheeling boy,
